

A top, whose parts by their cohesion are perpetually drawn aside from rectilinear motions, does not cease its rotation otherwise than as it is retarded by the air. Each part is forever pulled inward from the straight line it would take, yet the whole endures because no force impels it to stop. Remove the air and the top would spin forever, its angular speed unchanged, $\omega = \text{const.}$