

The greater bodies of the planets and comets, meeting less resistance in more free spaces, preserve their motions for a much longer time.